Comments

Oh, really! Let's see, the legislature passed SF 104 in 2013, and people got all heated up because it took away their vote to control public education at the state level. Then the Supreme Court said SF 104 was unconstitutional, and commented that to make a change that sweeping required amending the constitution. It's nice to see some respect for the constitution on this issue, but do you really think the people would vote for this? "Bad" only because it has no chance of passing at the ballot box, otherwise it would be "extremely bad".
